

PRESS RELEASE

Banbury lets the Oxford University Hospitals Foundation Trust know how they feel about THEIR beloved Horton hospital

This morning the people of Banbury and surrounding areas showed their overwhelming support for the Horton hospital.

Since it was impossible to travel the entire length of 'the hands' we can only estimate the numbers involved. However a figure of 5,000 cannot be far out.

People of all ages, mums and dads with 'Horton' babies, representatives of all ethnic groups that comprise our community, people in wheelchairs, the Banbury hobby horses, Radio Horton and members of all political parties were there to make their voices heard. Everyone desperate to get their message across as well as say 'I was at Hands around the Horton'.

Our Facebook page (Save our Horton) is constantly being updated with images and abiding thoughts of the event.

A massive public outpouring of gratitude that people were able to contribute to an event that will go down in Banbury's history books.

'If the Trust didn't hear that today, they must be deaf' said KTHG chairman Keith Strangwood. 'Watch my lips - HANDS OFF THE HORTON'
